ATROCITIES CHARGED TO GERMANS; LONDON TEUTONS VICTIMS OF MOB; U. S. DEMANDS STRICT ACCOUNTING

NATION READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY, IS NOTICE OF WILSON

Germans Told Plainly They Must Explain Lusitania Outrage.

BRANDED AN UNLAWFUL ACT

Note Sent to Imperial Government Demands Not Only Satisfaction for the Lusitania Incident, But Assurance That It Will Not be Repeated

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The United States government in a note to Germany today formally demands of the imperial government a strict accounting for the loss of American lives in the sinking of the Lusitania and violations of American rights in the war zone. It also asks guarantees that there will be no repetition of such practices.

With the plain intimation that the United States is prepared to meet any eventuality that may arise from a non-compliance the communication phrased in unmistakably emphatic language was prepared to be cabled to Berlin by nightfall. The White House officially announced that the President had finally determined the course of action to be taken in the following statement issued by Secretary Tumulty after a conference with the President:

"The course of the President has been determined. It will be announced as soon as it is proper to publish the note now in preparation."

This was taken to mean that the American government, observing the usual diplomatic amenities would await the receipt of the communication in Berlin before making it public.

First there was some suggestion that the communication be sent personally by the President to Emperor William but Mr. Wilson determined that it should be addressed not to an individual but to the German government and through it to the German people.

As for reparation the United States will seek financial reparation but its protest now is in the name of international law and humanity to obtain a guarantee that such tragedies will not be repeated and the lives of non-combatants sacrificed.

While high officials and Cabinet officers were reticent to discuss its contents it was agreed that the note voiced the intense feeling of the United States over the occurrences in the war zone and wanted an explanation of them as well as a guarantee that they would not be repeated. The note while firm and pointed does not abandon tones of friendliness giving room for a disavowal by Germany of her acts or the abatement of her practices. This is intimated in the suggestion that the German government and the German people could certainly not have intended to sacrifice American lives in the pursuit of their maritime warfare.

Attention is called to the fact that while advertisements of warning appeared in the newspapers the United States government was never officially notified of it but irrespective of that the position is taken that warning of an unlawful act neither justifies it nor makes it lawful. The note calls on Germany for an explanation of her past and future course and leaves open the steps the United States will take to compel an acquiescence in its position.

Cabinet officers known as the advocates always of vigorous steps in foreign affairs were highly pleased. They said the note was the kind of document that fulfilled the desires of every American and upheld the dignity and honor of the United States indicating that the American government was prepared to go to the full length of its ability.

FIVE BODIES FOUND IN DRIFTING LIFEBOAT

QUEENSTOWN, May 12.—A lifeboat bearing the bodies of three women and two boys which has been adrift since last Friday is reported ashore near Baltimore on the South Irish coast.

There were no American first cabin passengers among the 1[illegible] dead brought into Queenstown this morning.

Final efforts are being made on a large scale to recover the Lusitania's dead. Not only are the tugs Flying Fox and Storm Cock cruising about the scene of the disaster but a group of admiralty patrol boats is scouting over a wide area. Beach patrols also are on the lookout from Queenstown to the southern tip of Ireland. One patrol boat has been ordered [illegible] all other vessels to continue the search.

LONDON, May 12.—A committee of Americans in London today consulted with Ambassador Page concerning a proposal to hold a memorial service for the American victims of the Cunard liner Lusitania.

Mr. Page favored the proposal on condition that there be no speeches. The service probably will be held at St. Paul's.

ANTI-GERMAN TIDE RUNS HIGH IN LONDON

Teutons are Victims of Mobs' Wrath, Stores and Homes Attacked.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, May 12.—Anti-German riots in the East End of London were renewed this morning with even greater violence than yesterday. Wherever a German showed himself he was attacked. The police force has been so thinned by drafts sent to the army that it had difficulty in dealing with the angry crowds. Special constables had to be called out.

A number of German establishments were raided and sacked and their contents scattered over the streets. The Germans themselves were forced to go into hiding. The police in some cases were defied by the angry crowds and some officers were injured during their endeavor to protect the Germans.

The furniture and fittings of German houses and stores were hurled through windows to the streets. When the proprietors were caught they were severely mauled and in some cases their clothes were torn from their backs. One German was thrown into a horse trough with the reminder that his compatriots had been spending their time drowning women and children. He was only saved from a similar fate by the intervention of the police.

There were several instances of German butchers trying to escape in their carts. They went racing down the streets at a mad gallop but in most cases they were ultimately run down and their vehicles smashed. A number of Russian Jewesses were flocking this morning to the police stations in the East End and pleading for protection explaining that they were being mistaken for Germans.

Reports are reaching the police that private houses belonging to wealthy Germans in the fashionable West End are likely to be burned. Troops are in readiness to aid the police if necessary.

Large placards in the windows of almost all business houses and markets bear the words "No Business Transacted With Germans." The protest of the German citizens of Bradford against the course of the German government in the torpedoing of the Lusitania is the first united public denunciation by naturalized Teutons expressing horror and indignation of the German outrages.

Letters from individual Germans are pouring in the newspapers but the prominent among the German residents have not as yet made any move.

The cabinet was in special session today to review the alien situation as altered by recent happenings and the country is eagerly expecting drastic action.

Anti-German outbreaks of particular severity occurred today in the neighborhood of the East India docks. Sixty or 70 German shops were wrecked. Germans in the vicinity are uniting for self defense and police reinforcements are being rushed to the scene.

Lord Charles Beresford and William Joynson-Hicks presented separate petitions in the House of Commons today asking that the House decree the internment of all male alien enemies of military age and the removal of other alien enemies to places 30 miles or more from the coast. The petitions bore about 100,000 signatures.

Premier Asquith stated in the House of Commons today that the cabinet was quite alive to the fact that the progressive violations of the rules of civilized warfare and humanity by the enemy culminating in the sinking of the Lusitania and the feelings they aroused has made it necessary to look beyond merely military considerations. The government therefore was carefully considering the practicability of the segregation and internment of alien enemies on a more comprehensive scale. The premier added he hoped to make a more definite statement tomorrow.

ITALIAN CROWDS CLAMOR FOR WAR WITH AUSTRIA

ROME, via Paris, May 12.—What is considered the last definite proposal of Austria concerning the territorial concessions demanded by Italy was received today by the Italian government. The cabinet at once went into session to consider the communication.

ROME, May 11, via Paris, May 12.—Troops were called out tonight to disperse a great crowd of war enthusiasts which paraded the principal streets crying "Down with Austria! Down with Giolitti!" and cheering for Premier Salandra and Minister of Foreign Affairs Sonnino.

Most of the persons in the throng apparently felt the greatest animosity toward former Premier Giolitti who is regarded as the leader of the peace party. An attempt was made to storm his residence but it was frustrated by soldiers. The crowd jeered as it passed the German [illegible].

Final decision as to whether Italy shall declare war or remain neutral rests with King Emmanuel. The Italian constitution gives to the sovereign alone authority to declare war, make peace and conclude treaties. Apparently however, a majority of the peo-

UNARMED BELGIANS MASSACRED BY THE GERMANS, IS CHARGE

Scathing Arraignment of Teuton Soldiers Made by the British.

"SYSTEMATIC INCENDIARISM"

Commission Headed by Former Ambassador to U. S. and Historian of Note Returns Most Severe Arraignment Yet Made Against the Kaiser.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, May 12.—Viscount Bryce, former British ambassador at Washington and now chairman of a special government committee appointed to investigate and report on outrages alleged to have been committed by German troops during the present war, has submitted the report of the committee to Premier Asquith.

The document is considered as probably the most severe arraignment thus far made of the German military sweep across Belgium mainly because of the position of Viscount Bryce as a historian and also because of the care with which the investigation was made, the great number of witnesses whose testimony was examined and the mass of evidence now submitted with the report of the committee.

Associated with Lord Bryce on the committee were Sir Frederick Pollock, Sir Edward Clarke, Sir Alfred Hopkinson, H. A. L. Fisher, vice chancellor of the University of Sheffield, Harold Cox and Kenelm E. Digby. The committee was appointed by Premier Asquith on January [illegible] last, and was given broad instructions to investigate alleged outrages, the maltreatment of civilians and breach of law and established usages of war.

The most important findings of the committee are summed up in the following conclusion at the close of the report:

"It will be seen that the committee have come to a definite conclusion upon each of the heads under which the evidence has been classified.

It is proved:

"First. That there were in many parts of Belgium deliberate and systematically organized massacres of the civil population accompanied by many isolated murders and other outrages.

"Second. That in the conduct of the war generally innocent civilians both men and women, were murdered in large numbers, women violated and children murdered.

"Third. That looting, house burning and the wanton destruction of property were ordered and countenanced by the officers of the German army, that elaborate provision had been made for systematic incendiarism at the very outbreak of the war, that the burnings and destruction were frequently where no military necessity could be alleged, being indeed part of a system of general terrorization.

"Fourth. That the rules and usages of war were frequently broken, particularly by the using of civilians, including women and children as a shield for advancing forces exposed to fire, to a less degree by killing the wounded and prisoners and in the frequent abuse of the Red Cross and the white flag.

"Sensible as they are of the gravity of these conclusions the committee conceive that they would be doing less than their duty if they failed to record them as fully established by the evidence. Murder, lust and pillage prevailed over many parts of Belgium on a scale unparalleled in any war between civilized nations during the last three centuries.

"Our function is ended when we have stated what the evidence establishes but we may be permitted to express our belief that these disclosures will not have been made in vain if they touch and rouse the conscience of mankind and we venture to hope that as soon as the present war is over the nations of the world in council will consider what means can be provided and sanctions devised to prevent the recurrence of such horrors as our generation is now witnessing."

The report makes an official document of 61 printed pages or upward of 30,000 words accompanied by maps showing the various routes of the army and the chief scenes of desolation. It states at the outset that 1,200 witnesses have been examined, the depositions being taken by examiners of legal knowledge and experience though without authority to administer an oath. The examiners were instructed not to lead the witnesses and to seek to bring out the truth by cross examination and otherwise. The committee also submit extracts from a number of diaries taken from the German dead, chiefly German soldiers and in some cases officers.

South Connellsville defeated the B. & O. Machinists team on May field by the score of 3 to 2.

GIVES TWO PIGS TO PAY DAMAGES DONE BY A MULE

A. W. Shaffer Makes Unique Settlement of a Suit. Pigs Must Sell for $10.

One of the most unique settlements of a law suit that ever was arraigned in the city is that under which A. W. Shaffer agrees to give two pigs as payment for the damages his donkey inflicted on the barn of Andy Barbore on South Arch street early this week. The pigs are to be sold for $10, of which $5 goes to Barbore for damage sustained and $2.3[illegible] to Alderman Fred Munk for costs. The remaining $2.6[illegible] is to be returned to the owner of the trouble-making mule.

Barbore claims that damages amounting to at least $10 was caused when the donkey bombarded it with its hoofs and those who saw the demolished structure declare that the explosion of a shell from one of those 20 centimeter guns could hardly have shattered it any neater.

After gaining an entrance to the stable the donkey bit Barbore's horse in the leg. The owner swore out a warrant the next day for the animal's arrest and a summons was served on the owner to appear and defend the mule's actions if he could. The donkey is only four feet high but his owner declares he can pull more than a horse and those who saw the battered barn declare he has a tremendous lot of kick in those rear legs.

The donkey was arrested some time ago by the police for roaming around town unescorted after boys had ridden him all over the city. He was given to a livery stable until the owner redeemed him.

OHIO STRIKE IS OVER

Mine Workers Ratify New Cleveland Wage Scale.

By Associated Press.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 12.—In the presence of several thousand cheering miners the convention of the United Mine Workers of Ohio for the fifth subdistrict today ratified the Cleveland scale of 39 cents a ton for loaders and eight cents for cutters.

It was announced that the scale committee would meet the operators in Cleveland within the next 48 hours where it was expected the final papers settling the year-old strike would be signed by both sides.

John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America and William Green, secretary-treasurer urged the men to accept the Cleveland scale but there was strong sentiment in favor of 40 cents for loaders and seven cents for cutters. The arguments of the officers however prevailed and the vote of delegates was overwhelmingly in favor of the Cleveland scale.

Laborers are at work in many mines in the district cleaning up fallen rock and preparing for an early resumption.

ACCOUNTANTS NAMED

They Will Soon Begin Audit of J. V. Thompson's Affairs.

Friends of Mr. Thompson who have had the utmost confidence in his ability to handle the situation and who have stuck to him during the trying times of the last four months are jubilant today for proof that things are actually being done to terminate the receiverships as soon as possible. It is thought will stabilize coal values and re-establish credit.

ADJOURNMENT TO BE MAY 20

House Defeats Bill Amending Clark Third-Class City Bill Which Provided for Election of Councilmen on Party Tickets, Compensation Up.

Special to The Courier.

HARRISBURG, May 12.—Governor Brumbaugh has assured the Republican leaders that between now and the date of adjournment he will send to the Senate the names of the men that he wants confirmed as members of the Public Service Commission. While the governor gave no hint of the prospective personnel of the Public Service Commission he indicated to the leaders that he will send the names of his appointees to the Senate next week. Those who are in close touch with the situation look to see these appointments:

Samuel W. Pennypacker, Montgomery county, now chairman of the commission.

Milton J. Brecht of Lancaster, now a commissioner.

John S. Rilling of Erie, a Democrat.

Harry Bu[illegible]ingham of York, backed by Congressman Daniel F. Lafean.

Emerson Collins of Williamsport, an attorney.

M. P. Quinn of Philadelphia, confidential representative of Charles M. Schwab and a close friend of the governor.

Workmen's compensation appointments to the public service commission and a date for final adjournment of the Legislature were discussed at a conference at the executive mansion last night between the governor, Attorney General Brown and Senators William E. Crow, Edwin H. Vare and James P. McNichol. The governor mentioned no names that he will submit for the Public Service Commission but indicated that they will be sent to the Senate a day or two before adjournment.

House and Senate today agreed on May 20 as the date for final adjournment and preparations were made to push through without further delay the various appropriation measures. In the House the general appropriation bill for the state departments carrying $3[illegible] was passed and the bill providing for a constitutional convention was defeated.

The Senate passed the Crow bill empowering controllers in counties of from 115,000 to 200,000 to employ solicitors and the bill providing for free open air schools. A number of other measures also were finally passed.

Senator Sproul introduced a joint resolution again submitting to the voters the question of making a loan of $50,000,000 for road improvements. It provides that the election be held on the regular election day in November 1916. The resolution was at once reported from committee and passed first reading.

The final public hearing on the workmen's compensation bills was held by the Senate committee on corporations yesterday at which most of the amendments suggested for insertions in the measure when they were before the House were again offered. As was the case when the bills were before the lower house all those who appeared in criticism of the measures made it plain that they were not against workmen's compensation, but were opposed to certain provisions. The committee is expected to make very few changes.

In the Senate the bill guaranteeing equal rights to citizens regardless of race, creed or color in public places of amusement or accommodation was reported from committee with the imprisonment clause cut out, the amount of fine fixed at $85 to $100 and the damages at $100.

The Beidleman bridge bill permitting the submission of competitive plans for county bridges passed finally.

The Clark bill making numerous amendments to the bill governing third class cities and cutting out the non-partisan election of city councils was defeated by a vote of one yea to 31 nays. Mr. Beidleman who in committee eliminated the non partisan clause, was its only supporter.

The Vare bill providing for female watchers at the polls next November when the woman suffrage amendment is to go before the voters was called up on final passage and after long debate as to whether the present election officers will not act fairly, the bill passed finally by 37 yeas and 10 nays.

In the House the bill restricting corporations furnishing electricity from discriminating in service was passed by a vote of 1[illegible] to 11.

The bill to repeal the boiler inspection act of third class cities was defeated.

The House election committee indefinitely postponed the teachers' retirement bill.

C. B. French Critically Ill

C. B. French, superintendent of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and a former superintendent of the Connellsville division, is reported to be in a critical condition in the Presbyterian Hospital at Baltimore. Mrs. French and daughter, Miss Ruth, were summoned yesterday to the hospital.

ELKS WILL SPEND $10,000 IMPROVING PRESENT HOME

Decide on More Extensive Addition Than Had Been Originally Intended.

More extensive improvements than originally agreed upon will be made to the clubhouse of the Connellsville Lodge of Elks. At a recent meeting the lodge approved the building of a two story addition on the rear of the present structure on East Main street, the lower floor of which is to be used for billiard rooms and bowling alleys and the upper floor as a combination lodge and banquet hall. In all about $10,000 will be spent instead of $7,000 as first estimated.

Plans to construct a 90-foot extension on the rear of the building for bowling alleys were changed to make it a two story brick addition which will include a large room which may be used for a meeting room and converted into a dance hall and banquet room for use on social occasions.

Bids for this addition will be asked soon so that work may begin in the near future and be pushed through to completion during the summer months.

The contract to repaint the interior of the present building has been awarded to Jerry Blackburn, and work was started today.

The downstairs woodwork will be done in mahogany. All ceilings will be enameled and in connection with a new system of indirect lighting will be installed. New paper will grace all of the walls, and when everything is completed the interior will be very greatly beautified.

He will return home for a while before entering on his course.

Wright spent the last two months at the preparatory school at Annapolis before taking the examinations. Of the class that took the examination only 38 per cent were successful.

Wright was appointed principal for the Annapolis appointment and alternate to West Point. He had previously failed to pass for admission to the Naval Academy and was rejected by West Point on that account. By persistence however he finally secured another chance at the naval appointment and has won out.

CLEAN UP WEEK IS TO BEGIN MAY 17, MAYOR ANNOUNCES

Residents to be Compelled to Remove Winter's Rubbish Deposits.

SOME ARRESTS ARE THREATENED

Those Who Fail to Comply With Command Will be Apprehended and Fined. Vacant Lots Must Be Cleaned Up by Owners and Promptly, Too.

The Board of Health having failed to take action in the matter Mayor Marietta today directed the newspapermen to announce the fact that the week of May 17 has been set aside as Clean Up Week during which all residents and property owners will be required to remove the winter's collection of refuse from their premises.

The clean up will be thorough, the mayor announced, and backed up by the authority of the police department and the health officer he expects to compel everyone to remove his share of the debris. Owners of vacant lots will be made to clean them up, even though they may not have been responsible for the rubbish deposited thereon. The mayor says he knows all about how vacant lots are made into dumping grounds. He says he has one himself on which he deposits refuse and cleans it away at different periods. His neighbors assist him he says in depositing a nice quantity of rubbish thereon.

Health Officer George Hetzel says vacant lots throughout the city present a deplorable appearance. On South Arch street recently he found several dead chickens and a dead turkey. It is impossible to trace those responsible for such violations of the health ordinance as these for much of the dumping is done after nightfall. Recently, however an arrest was made for depositing packages of rubbish in the bed of the creek on South Arch street. After examining several of the collections, envelopes bearing names were found and the guilty person was arrested and fined.

There are sections of town where the residents of town take pride in the appearance of their premises and have already cleaned them up and are taking steps toward beautifying them. In other localities however it is expected that it will be necessary to use force to get the residents to act.

The mayor emphasized the fact that the city is not going to spend money to haul away rubbish deposited by residents as it did last year. This is to be a clean up by the people who put the stuff there, otherwise there is to be some excitement in the form of arrests and fines.

NATION READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY, IS NOTICE OF WILSON

ple believe the cabinet must assume the responsibility [illegible] with the certainty that its decision will be sustained almost unanimously by parliament and the country. The part that parliament is to play remains uncertain. It may or may not be asked to express an opinion as to the wisest course to pursue.

Demonstrations similar to that in Rome are occurring in the larger towns throughout the country. Clashes with those who favor neutrality have been prevented several times by troops and police.

ANGLO-FRENCH ADVANCE [illegible] ON WEST FRONT

LONDON, May 12.—The progress of the allied offensive in Flanders and Northern France has given rise to hope here that one of the really momentous phases of the war is in process of evolution which would be regarded as favorable from the British point of view.

Berlin recognizes the importance of the new turn of events. German newspapers emphasize in large headlines the beginning of a new Anglo-French offensive. German reinforcements rushed from Lens and Douai thus far apparently have failed to check the dash of troops which sweeping northward from Arras have captured important German positions. The German war office states that progress has been made against the British lines east of Ypres but Sir John French's [illegible] that all German efforts to break through have failed. The British field marshal says nothing of the part British troops are taking in the offensive in the direction of Lille.

The situation on the long eastern battlefield is still obscure but it is evident that the gains are not all at the [illegible] of the Russians. The official reports from Petrograd and [illegible] [illegible] however that military experts are loath to commit themselves. Interest is undiluted in developments at Washington and dispatches from America are read eagerly in the hope of obtaining a clue to the probable action of President Wilson. The Globe says:

"If America is too proud to fight let us at least be thankful for King Albert's shelling [illegible] of dignity."

MAINTAIN GAINS IS CLAIM OF FRENCH

PARIS, May 12.—The French war office this afternoon issued the following [illegible]:

"To the north of Arras we have maintained our gains, excepting in front of [illegible] where a night counter attack resulted in taking from us a part of the territory we captured in the [illegible]. On the rest of the front yesterday saw artillery engagements."

VETOES CANAL BILL

Ohio Governor Says It Violates Tax Limitation Law

By Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Governor Willis today vetoed the Tremper bill passed by both houses of the Legislature which provided means for the participation by Ohio counties in the construction of a proposed Lake Erie & Ohio River canal.

The veto was based on the ground that the bill followed the provisions of a Pennsylvania statute on the same subject but that it was in conflict with Ohio's tax limitation statute.

HEROES IN THE TRENCHES

PARIS, May 12.—These men in the trenches must keep in constant vigilance against sudden attacks by the enemy. The men who serve the artillery also day and night oftentimes at an enemy that is not seen.

Medical science can give more lives this year than war will take, no matter how terrifically murderous that war may be. The fact is the food supply is very carefully looked after by the commissariat. The food supply of the soldiers must be wholesome. Living in the open air the men are able to digest hardtack with great relish. Napoleon said, "An army fights on its stomach." A man with a weak stomach is pretty sure to be a poor fighter. It is difficult—almost impossible—for any one, man or woman, if digestion is poor, to succeed in business or socially—or to enjoy life. In tablet or liquid form Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helps weak stomachs to strong, healthy action—helps them to digest the food that makes the good, rich red blood which nourishes the entire body.

This vegetable remedy, to a great extent, puts the liver into activity—oils the machinery of the human system so that those who spend their working hours at the desk, behind the counter, or in the home are rejuvenated into vigorous health.

It has brought relief to many thousands every year for nearly fifty years. It can relieve you and doubtless restore your former health and strength. At least you owe it to yourself to give it a trial. Sold by medicine dealers or send 50 cents for box of tablets—Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

THIN PEOPLE CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat but mixing with your food it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Druggists sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Adv.

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 530 Mechanic Street, Camden, N.J.

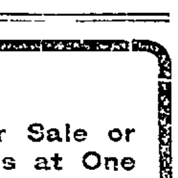

From Hanover, Penn.

HANOVER, PA.—"I was a very weak woman and suffered from bearing down pains and backache. I had been married over four years and had no children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved an excellent remedy for it made me a well woman. After taking a few bottles my pains disappeared, and we now have one of the finest boy babies you ever saw."—Mrs. C. A. RICKRODE, R.F.D., No. 5, Hanover, Pa.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, MAY 12, 1915.

DON'T YAMMER.

"Don't rock the boat!" was a favorite cry of the Democratic press when the first shock of the Democratic Tariff folly was closing mills, factories, mines and ovens, and fears of a financial panic were rife. The caution was addressed to the Republican press when it incidentally referred to the underlying causes of these conditions. Yet it wasn't the Republicans who rocked the boat. The ship of state was sailing on an even keel when she passed into the hands of the Captains and the Colonels of Democracy. When the same old boat was reeling through the black and angry waters of a financial storm caused by Democratic folly and Democratic incompetence, "Don't rock the boat!" was akin to the cry, "Stop thief!" by the thief.

"Stand by the President!" is the admonition now heard on every side. It is an insult to the patriotism of every good Republican. Every good citizen will stand by the President every time the President stands for the country. The patriot doesn't need to be told. Partisanship has its place in our American system but against the assaults or impositions of foreign nations we stand as one people.

President Wilson is reported to have in mind the severance of diplomatic relations between this country and Germany unless the latter nation agrees to cease torpedoing passenger ships where American lives are at stake. We trust the President will not go quite so far. As has been pointed out in these columns Germany has expressed a willingness to stop her submarine warfare in case England gives up its plan for starving the German population. To express our disapprobation with Germany in the drastic manner indicated and continue our friendly relations with Great Britain whose conduct is reprehensible in other respects, would seem like discrimination. To require Germany to refrain from attacking passenger vessels which may be laden with contraband of war because of the presence aboard of American citizens seems like an unreasonable request. The British commanders might readily have American protection of this sort rather than any other. Instead the ships could carry Americans. Common sense suggests that Americans keep off British boats in blockaded waters and if they are killed then the American nation has no cause of action against the belligerent nation whose hostile intent is not directed against American citizens. Perhaps those who are most influenced can see the situation more clearly by putting themselves in the place of Germany, remembering that the German navy is inferior to the British and dare not venture forth on the high seas, and that in consequence submarines and airships are the only methods of attack upon Great Britain and its commerce left to Germany.

The American people will stand by the President, of course, and the President we trust will stand by the American people by refusing to plunge them into a costly war without sufficient cause. The American sentiment is peaceful. Our people are not bullies. They do not seek quarrels. But they are not cowards, either. Once in they never fail to give good account of themselves. This nation is too big to be small in anything. The people will look with confidence to Washington. In the meantime, it will not be necessary for the Democratic press to get unduly excited and yammer around about rocking the boat and standing by the President. Every patriotic American citizen can be depended upon to do his duty.

THE STATE CONSTABULARY.

Every now and then some unwise friend of labor charges that the State Troopers are strikebreakers and enemies of organized labor. That charge has not ruined the constabulary, but it has prevented a desirable increase of the most efficient and unbiased body of peace officers Pennsylvania ever knew.

An effort to discredit the State Troopers was made by a former workman at the Bethlehem steel plant before the Industrial Relations Commission at Washington on Saturday. The witness charged that the State Troopers are political minions and were responsible for brutality and deaths in the strike of 1910. Commandant Groome denied the charges under oath and submitted facts in refutation. He demolished the political charge by showing that 225 out of 239 men in the service were formerly in the regular army.

The State Constabulary is absolutely neutral in politics, religion and industrial relation. That is one of the reasons of its high efficiency. It is a strong and dependable arm of the law, and as it upholds the law so should it be upheld by the people.

A Wild Lifer is not necessarily a smashing joy rider.

The graduating class of the Connellsville schools will plant a class tree on the library grounds but if they don't take any better care of it than the amateur agriculturists did of the gardens last season it won't be any use. However if the right kind of a tree is planted in the right place, perhaps the library trustees will help protect it. The worst enemy the library trees have there for had have been the school boys.

Times may be dull and the people poor, but the joy rider multiplies. Democratic economists say it is a sign of prosperity, but actual experience has shown that in most cases it has proven to be a sign of adversity.

It is stated that if his revenue tax bills are defeated, Governor Brumbaugh will cut the appropriations to charitable institutions rather than the appropriations for roads. We refuse to believe that the Governor is for the joy riders and against the pain killers.

Connellsville will have another carnival. Connellsville is opposed to carnivals on high moral grounds, but when it is proposed to hold them under the auspices of the fire department and for the benefit of the boys it's different.

Mount Pleasant will have an overland express via Tarr station, and it isn't the Wells-Fargo either.

Connellsville's idle young men are going to Akron, O., to rubber until they tire.

The announcement that the Connellsville to Broad Ford road would be permanently improved to the extent of two miles instead of one mile as at first contemplated is very gratifying. That will mean an improved road for practically the whole distance. Broad Ford is only about two miles away.

Perhaps the Connellsville bond money has been torpedoed.

The Council is considering the advisability of taxing trading stamp companies doing business in Connellsville. The city authorities probably think if it's right for the state to tax them it is right for the city to do so.

The British inquest in the case of the Lusitania victims is suspected of being prejudiced.

Hunters along Indian Creek report seeing a wild cat with eyes as big as auto lamps. Perhaps it wasn't the cat that was wild.

It's all right for the joy rider to have a smashing time, but when the car is borrowed without the owner's consent it is different.

Instead of having money to lend, Connellsville finds herself obliged to borrow. It was in order to sell $100,000 worth of city bonds then it is to get the money. What's the hitch this time?

Italy is preparing to be in at the death. It might be a long time before the funeral takes place.

Sleepwalking headache tablets are dangerous things for young ladies to tamper with. It looks as if headache tablets needed investigation at the hands of the Pure Food and Drug Regulators.

Exchange Etchings.

The Washington Observer notes that the farmer is gradually becoming an automobile owner and is using the gasoline car for both pleasure and business, and that he is no longer opposed to the improvement of the highways for the benefit of the man who owns a motor car because he belongs to that class himself. With the business men of the cities and towns, the farmers of the country and the Governor of the state all for good roads it will be hard to prevent the movement from absorbing considerable state revenue. The hospitals which exist largely for the benefit of the poor and distressed are up against a strong combination, but we will hope that the spirit of the Compassionate One has not wholly departed from Harrisburg.

The Johnstown Tribune is against Bossism, but it finds many excuses for the bossism of President Wilson and Governor Brumbaugh, and the boss connections of Colonel Roosevelt, past and present, meets with its cordial approval. Editor Walters was sent to Congress in 1912 by Boss Flinn. His boss views are consequently a bit strabismic.

The Washington News is gratified to report that activities against the corner loafers and alley drinkers are having a good effect. Washington is one of the "dry" towns.

The Connellsville News thinks the circus the real barometer of trade in the Connellsville coke region. This is a peanut view.

STRONG AND READY

See America First; Hudson River by Day

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

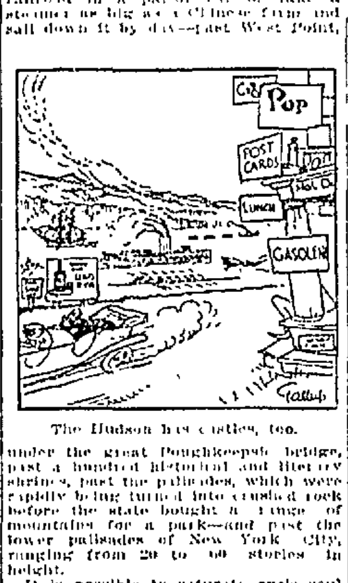

Many thousand eager tourists on their way to Europe have been too busy reading about the Rhine in their guide books to look at the Hudson river on their way to sail from New York.

And yet the Hudson in its way is as famous as the Rhine. More people live along its banks and almost as much history has clustered about it in the last three hundred years. It is also justly celebrated for its history.

On the Rhine man has greatly improved the scenery by terracing the hills with vineyards and planting castles on the hilltops. But the Hudson scenery was installed by the cheapest architect and needs no improvement. For miles after miles the Catskill mountains come down to the water enclosing it in great wooded walls, while thunderstorms play among their peaks and drift up the valley from headland to headland.

The Hudson has castles too, but they are not of the extinct kind which were blown up a hundred years ago and now eke out a precarious existence selling refreshments and souvenir cards. The oil, coal, railroad, chewing gum and sausage kings of the United States have planted great marble palaces on the hills back of the Hudson and the United States Military Academy at West Point has as fine a group of buildings as was ever built by an old robber baron.

One may travel down the Hudson by railroad in a parlor car or take a steamer as big as a Chinese town and sail down it by day—past West Point, under the great Poughkeepsie bridge, past a hundred historical and literary shrines, past the palisades, which were rapidly being turned into crushed rock before the state bought a range of mountains for a park—and past the tower palisades of New York City, ranging from 20 to 60 stories in height.

The Hudson has castles, too.

It is possible to saturate one's soul with beauty on this trip at a very small expense and if the tourist wishes to revel in the delights of foreign travel at the same time, he has only to alight at any place and try to borrow a match from a gang of red shirted laborers. He will discover eleven foreign languages always on tap.

The Hudson is appreciated by Americans, who fill the largest river steamers in the world each summer to see it. But it is also unfortunately appreciated by the ice companies who have lined its banks with vast white sheds full of preserved coolness. In the interests of art these sheds should be sodded over and planted with blackberry jungles.

Great Shoe Bargains, Don't Miss This Opportunity

The Union Supply Company stores are pushing out shoes. That means every shoe department is now having an active reduction sale. We have told you frequently about the shoe opportunities, and we want to tell you again. They are certainly the greatest ever offered. It is regular goods we are selling; not old broken lines or bad stock; unsaleable or undesirable goods. They are new, choice stylish, made especially to our order; the trouble is, we are overstocked, and that is why it is necessary to force the sale. The best way to dispose of them the best way to get the people interested is to reduce the prices; that we found out long ago. The shoe bargains; the shoe opportunities, consist largely of fashionable footwear for women, misses and children; oxfords, lace and button; tans, blacks, white and other colors. Fashionable foot wear for men and boys; tans; blacks and other sorts; oxford and high tops; heavy soled and thin soled. Then another important line is the high class working shoes for men and boys, and they are all being offered at reduced prices. Every pair is manufactured exclusively for the Union Supply Company; every pair is guaranteed, and if they are not satisfactory, we will replace them or refund your money.

Everson Brass Band and Volunteer Firemen Visit Scottdale and Are Objects of Most Favorable Comment Other Notes of News of Mill Town.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, May 12.—This year's crop of snakes is a good one in Everson borough. Witness this incident of the streets of that neighboring town across the red waters of Jacobs creek. Mrs. McLaughlin, wife of the principal of the Everson schools, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Goldie McLaughlin, a teacher in the Scottdale schools, were wending their way home so the story goes, from a call on friends the other evening. Just in front of the McLaughlin home, which is on the main street of Everson, traversed by about all the inhabitants of that place, and also by the West Penn cars every half hour, the two ladies encountered a snake. It was no slouchy, diminutive reptile either, over five feet in length, as was afterward shown. The reptile wriggled on the sidewalk. The ladies called for help, and H. B. Brooks who was nearby came to their rescue and did the St. George part in slaying the dragon.

The snake made no effort to get away, but rather stood its ground, if such a figure be applicable to the sinuous, creeping posture of a snake, and it required some adroit work with a club to dispatch the snake. The reptile was what is commonly known as the black snake, and was over five feet in length. Why it visited Everson, where it came from, and where it was going when interrupted in its migrations remain a mystery.

FIREMEN PARADE.

The Everson volunteer fire department made a little visit to Scottdale on Tuesday evening, headed by their brass band which is lead by Robert Stoner, who is a member of the Scottdale Grand Army Band, and who has been directing the activities of the Everson musical organization for the past few months, since that band was formed. The band and firemen were attired in their neat and harmonious blue uniforms, and made an excellent impression, and were the recipient of many favorable remarks on the part of the many who were on the streets. There were about 70 firemen following the band. The occasion was a little supper practice drill and march that the Everson boys were doing.

SELECTING SLOGANS BECOMING POPULAR INDOOR PASTIMES

Trade Organizations Everywhere are Holding Their Little Contests.

SOME UNIQUE ONES ADOPNED

Most Startling Recently Announcing is That of Kane Which Reads "Kane in Able;" Play on Words Usually Brings Home Prize to the Cleverest.

Selecting slogans has become one of the most popular of indoor pastimes with chambers of commerce, boards of trade and other civic organizations throughout the country. The first thing a civic association does after organizing and outlining its policy for municipal improvement, is to offer a prize for a slogan.

As was the case when the Business & Professional Men's Credit Association chose to supply this city with a slogan, the response to the appeal for suggestions is usually generous. Then a slogan is decided on, usually for its play on words, its alliteration or for the evolution of some clever, though perhaps meaningless, conceit.

Then the slogan is advertised broadcast, blazoned forth on signboards, printed at the head of newspaper banners, and otherwise given prominence. The slogan is usually intended to convey the spirit of the town it represents and new industries when seeking a location is supposed to look over the slogans and say to itself, "There's town with a good slogan; let's locate there."

The effect of a slogan is declared to be negligible by men experienced in town-boosting, but everywhere towns are going ahead adopting them with great hullabaloo, and mostly for their cleverness rather than their force.

Recently the town of Kane in Elk county adopted a slogan, "Kane in Able," which is startling, to say the least; Clarksburg, W. Va., selected the following rythmic phrase, "Made in Clarksburg isn't enough; Trade in Clarksburg, that's the stuff." Olean, N. Y., adopted a slogan several years ago, "Olean Offers Opportunity." Oil City, Pa., had a slogan contest some time later and an enterprising youth substituted Oil City for Olean and won the prize. Out in the West they are fond of playing on words. Topeka has: "Topeka, Kan., (Can) Topeka Will." Pottsville, Pa., also plays on words with "The Best Site in the Anthracite."

Connellsville's slogan is "Our A. B. C's: Always Boosting Connellsville."

Passage of Child Labor Bill Carries Out Promise.

PLEDGED IN G. O. P. PLATFORM

Republican State Committee Gave Pledge of Assurance of Such a Law, and Its Enactment Reflects Credit Upon Party—Mothers' Pension Increased Appropriation Is Another Pledge That Is Being Lived Up To.

Harrisburg, May 11.—In the passage of the child labor law through the legislature the Republican party must be credited with adding another chapter to its pledgekeeping book. The Republican state committee at the Pittsburgh meeting in September, 1914, promised to enact a child labor bill satisfactory to the associations advocating shorter hours for minors.

This promise was fulfilled when the general assembly, composed as it is of 202 Republicans out of a total membership of 257, put through the Cox bill.

Though manufacturers attack the measure as unjust and do not hesitate to mince words in reciting how votes were gotten in support of it, the belief prevails among disinterested people that the law will not work the hard ships anticipated by the owners of industries. There will be some difficulty in the beginning, but as soon as the readjustment period passes the defects will probably be ironed out.

It is pointed out by proponents of the Cox bill that the Massachusetts child labor law, after which it is patterned, disturbed business in that state for only a short time; that at present everybody has adjusted himself to the new conditions and the statute is doing a lot of real good in providing education to children who previous to its passage were compelled to work continually without a thought of mental improvement.

The Pennsylvania law calls for fifty-one hours a week for children between fourteen and sixteen years, with one day off for vocational education. This is in effect a forty-three hour measure.

Manufacturers claim that under the new law they cannot afford to employ any children at all under sixteen year of age, and that these minors will have to make way for older persons, who are allowed to work fifty-four hours a week. A recent statement from a Reading manufacturer says in connection with the new law: "There is only one redeeming feature in the new act, and that is its absurdity is so marked, the motives behind it are so clear, the means used to jam it through were so contemptible and the crime—social and economic—of its enforcement will be so great, that it will serve as its own antidote."

The law takes effect next January, and as but one year will elapse from that time till the next meeting of the legislature, it can very easily be repealed, if it is found to work as much wickedness as predicted by the manufacturers. A trial of twelve months cannot do very much harm.

Senator Charles A. Snyder led the fight against the bill in the upper branch. He ridiculed the idea that children are being crushed by the wheels of industries in Pennsylvania and dwelt at length upon the fact that the people whom the law affects most—poor people—are not asking for it.

The bill was defended by Senators Vare, Hilton, McNichol and others. They stated that the proposed law is feasible in every particular and in the long run will be found to be doing the greatest good for the greatest number.

In connection with the child labor law the fear expressed in many quarters that its operation may handicap widows, who are depending upon their children's earnings for support, it might be stated that the legislature is going to set aside a mothers' pension fund of at least $900,000. This is twice as much as appropriated two years ago. As every dollar of this amount must be met with another dollar from the respective counties through which it is distributed, the appropriation really means that for the coming two years $800,000 will be paid out to widowed mothers. There is a possibility of even more than $400,000 being appropriated, and it would not be surprising if the total that goes into the fund state and county appropriations will be nearer $1,000,000 than $800,000.

It is gratifying to know that this mothers' pension increase was also one of the planks of the last Republican platform. That the party was able to successfully underwrite an action of this kind, which means so much in reducing poverty in these Democratic days, is a source of much satisfaction to say the least.

At this writing it looks as if the close of the legislature will find that every pledge in the last Republican platform has been kept to the very letter. This will be an achievement of great importance to the G. O. P., and will prove a complete refutation of the statement made during last fall's campaign that the platform was prepared merely for the candidates to run upon rather than as an instrument to be carried out by the party.

The Modest Scot.

Love of country is so fine a virtue that it seems difficult to carry it to excess. A resident of a small village in the north of Scotland paid a business visit to London and called on a merchant who, unknown to him, had once made a stay in his native place. In the course of conversation the visitor made use of an expression that led the other to exclaim, "Surely you come from Glen McLuskie?" The assertion, however, was denied. Presently, to the merchant's surprise, another Glen McLuskie expression was heard. "My dear Mr. MacTavish, I feel convinced that you are a Glen McLuskie man after all," insisted the merchant.

"Weel," returned the other, "I'll no deny it any longer."

"Then why didn't you say so at first?" demanded the Englishman.

"Weel," was the calm response, "I didna like to boast o' it in London."—London Chronicle.

Got Her Answer.

A meddlesome woman in a street car began sneering at a young mother's awkwardness with her baby and said, "I declare a woman ought never to have a baby until she knows how to hold it!"

"Nor a tongue either," quietly responded the young mother.

A man is very apt to complain of the ingratitude of those who have risen very far above him.—Samuel Johnson.

Every Three Minutes a Baby Dies

Every three minutes a baby dies in this wonderful land of ours;
Every three minutes a casket white rests under its pall of flowers;
Every three minutes a tiny form is borne to a sloping hill,
'Twas only a baby's life that passed, so the women are marching still.

With blare of trumpet and roll of drum the suffragist corps proceed;
With flaunt of yellow they grimly tramp, for the ballot is all they heed.
The mother is lost in the suffragette. Before her her freedom lies,
So every three minutes from sheer neglect a sick little baby dies.

The vital statistics of life record and others have taken note
That deaths of infants deplete the world, yet the mothers must have the vote.
The crown of motherhood cast aside, its care and its love and cost,
The nation itself must pay the price for the lives of the babes it lost.

The HOME needs mothering, NOT the state, for the home is the nation's life.
Then what if the mother forsakes the child for the glamour of public strife?
The world's good women would serve it best should they heed the infants' cries,
For every three minutes, unloved, somewhere a pale little baby dies.

Is a baby's life in this land of ours such a cheap and a useless thing
That men in indifferent mood should say, "Why, the women must have their fling?"
Stand back! Make way for the grand parade while the suffragist banner flies,
But—every three minutes while women march a sacrificed baby dies.

The Mystery of a Silent Love

Suddenly she said: "I was once in Leghorn for a few hours. We were yachting in the Mediterranean. I love the sea—and yachting is such awfully good fun, if you only get decent weather."

The mention of yachting brought back to my mind the visit of the Lola and its mysterious sequel.

"Your father has a yacht, then?" I remarked, with as little concern as I could.

"Yes. The Iris. My uncle is cruising on her up the Norwegian Fiords. For us it is a change to be here, because we are so often afloat."

"So you must have made many long voyages, and seen many odd corners of the world, Miss Leithcourt?" I remarked, my interest in her increasing, for she seemed so extremely intelligent and well informed.

"Oh, yes. We've been to Mexico, and to Panama, besides Morocco, Egypt and the west coast of Africa."

"And you've actually landed at Leghorn?" I remarked.

"Yes, but we didn't stay there more than an hour—to send a telegram, I think it was. Father said there was nothing to see there. He and I went ashore, and I must say I was rather disappointed."

"You are quite right. The town itself is ugly and uninteresting. But the outskirts—San Jacopo, Ardenza and I Regarded Her in Astonishment and Suspicion.

Antignano are all delightful. It was unfortunate that you did not see them. Was it long ago when you put in there?"

"Not very long. I really don't recollect the exact date," was her reply. "We were on our way home from Alexandria."

"Have you ever, in any of the ports you've been, seen a yacht called the Lola?" I asked eagerly, for it occurred to me that perhaps she might be able to give me information.

"The Lola!" she gasped, and instantly her face changed. A flush overspread her cheeks, succeeded next moment by a deathlike pallor. "The Lola!" she repeated in a strange, hoarse voice, at the same time endeavoring strenuously not to exhibit any apprehension. "No. I have never heard of any such a vessel. Is she a steam yacht? Who's her owner?"

I regarded her in amazement and suspicion, for I saw that mention of the name had aroused within her some serious misgiving. That look in her dark eyes as they fixed themselves upon me was one of distinct and unspeakable terror.

What could she possibly know concerning the mysterious craft?

"I don't know the owner's name," I said, still affecting not to have noticed her alarm and apprehension. "The vessel ran aground at the Meloria, a dangerous shoal outside Leghorn, and through the stupidity of her captain was very nearly lost."

"Yes?" she gasped, in a half-whisper, bending to me eagerly, unable to sufficiently conceal the terrible anxiety consuming her. "And you—did you go aboard her?"

"Yes," was the only word I uttered.

A silence fell between us, and as my eyes fixed themselves upon her, I saw that from her handsome mobile countenance all the light and life had suddenly gone out, and I knew that she was in secret possession of the key to that remarkable enigma that so puzzled me.

Of a sudden the door opened, and a voice cried gayly:

"Why, I've been looking everywhere for you, Muriel. Why are you hidden here? Aren't you coming?"

We both turned, and as she did so a low cry of blank dismay involuntarily escaped her.

Next instant I sprang to my feet. The reason of her cry was apparent, for there, in the full light of the golden sunset streaming through the long open windows, stood a broad-shouldered, fair-bearded man in tennis flannels and a Panama hat—the fugitive I knew as Philip Hornby!

I faced him, speechless.

CHAPTER IV.

In Which the Mystery Increases.

Neither of us spoke. Hornby started quickly as soon as his eyes fell upon me, and his face became blanched to the lips, while Muriel Leithcourt, quick to notice the sudden change in him, rose and introduced us in as calm a voice as she could command.

"I don't think you are acquainted," she said to me with a smile. "This is Mr. Martin Woodroffe—Mr. Gordon Gregg."

We bowed, exchanging greetings as strangers, while, carefully watching, I saw how greatly the minds of both were relieved. They shot meaning glances at each other, and then, as he chatted with the daughter of the house, he cast a quick, covert glance at me, and then darted a meaning look at her—a look of renewed confidence, as though he felt that he had successfully averted any suspicions I might have held.

We talked of the prospects of the grouse and the salmon, and from his remarks he seemed to be as keen at sport as he had once made out himself to be at yachting. While I was carefully watching the rapid working of his mind, Leithcourt himself entered and joined us.

Host and guest were evidently on the most intimate terms. Leithcourt addressed him as "Martin," and while they were talking Muriel suggested that we should stroll down to the tennis courts again, an invitation which, much as I regretted leaving the two men, I was bound to accept. Among the party strolling and lounging there prior to departure were quite a number of people I knew, people who had shooting boxes in the vicinity and were my uncle's friends. In Scotland there is always a hearty hospitality among the sporting folk, and the laws of caste are far less rigorous than they are in England.

I was standing chatting with two ladies who were about to take leave of their hostess, when Leithcourt returned, but alone. Hornby had not accompanied him. Was it because he feared to again meet me?

In order to ascertain something regarding the man who had so mysteriously fled from Leghorn, I managed by the exercise of a little diplomacy to sit on the lawn with a young married woman named Tennant, wife of a cavalry captain, who was one of the house party. After a little time I succeeded in turning the conversation to her fellow guests, and more particularly to the man I knew as Hornby.

"Oh! Mr. Woodroffe is most amusing," declared the bright little woman. "He's always playing some practical joke or other. After dinner he is usually the life and soul of our party."

"Yes," I said, "I like what little I have seen of him. He's a very good fellow, I should say. I've heard that he's engaged to Muriel," I hazarded. "Is that true?"

"Of course. They've been engaged nearly a year, but he'll been abroad until quite lately. He is rather close about his own affairs, and never talks about his travels and adventures, although one day Mr. Leithcourt declared that his hairbreadth escapes would make a most exciting book if ever written."

"Leithcourt and he are evidently most intimate friends."

"Oh, quite inseparable!" she laughed. "And the other man who is always with them is that short, stout, red-faced old fellow standing over there with the lady in pale blue, Sir Ughtred Gardner. Mr. Woodroffe has nicknamed him 'Sir Putrid.' And we both laughed. "Of course, don't say I said so," she whispered. "They don't call him that to his face, but it's so easy to make a mistake in his name when he's not within hearing. We women don't care for him, so the nickname just fits."

And she gossiped on, telling me much that I desired to know regarding the new tenant of Rannoch and his friends, and more especially of that man who had first introduced himself to me in the consulate at Leghorn.

Half an hour later my uncle's carriage was announced, and I left with the distinct impression that there was some deep mystery surrounding the Leithcourts. Whatever the reason, I had become filled with grave apprehensions. The mystery grew deeper day by day, and was inexplicable.

During the week that followed I sought to learn all I could regarding the new people at the castle.

"They are taken up everywhere," declared my aunt when I questioned her. "Of course, we know very little of them, except that they had a shoot up near Fort William two years ago, and that they have a town house in Green street. They are evidently rather smart folks. Don't you think so?"

"Judging from their house party, yes," I responded. "They are about as gay a crowd as one could find north of Carlisle just at present."

"Exactly. There are some well-known people among them, too," said my aunt. "I've asked them over to-morrow afternoon, and they've accepted."

"Excellent!" I exclaimed, for I wanted an opportunity for another chat with the dark-eyed girl who was engaged to the man whose alias was Hornby. I particularly desired to ascertain the reason of her fear when I had mentioned the Lola, and whether she possessed any knowledge of Hylton Chater.

The opportunity came to me in due course, for next afternoon the Rannoch party drove over in two large brakes, and with other people from the neighborhood and a band from Dumfries, my aunt's grounds presented a gay and animated scene.

As I expected, Woodroffe did not accompany the party. Mrs. Leithcourt, a slightly fussy little woman, apologized for his absence, explaining that he had been recalled to London suddenly a few days before, but was returning to Rannoch again at the end of the week.

"We couldn't afford to lose him," she declared to my aunt. "He is so awfully humorous—his droll sayings and antics keep us in a perfect roar each night at dinner. He's such a perfect mimic."

I turned away and strolled with Muriel, pleading an excuse to show her my uncle's beautiful grounds, not a whit less picturesque than those of the castle, and perhaps rather better kept.

"I only heard yesterday of your engagement, Miss Leithcourt," I remarked presently when we were alone. "Allow me to offer my best congratulations. When you introduced me to Mr. Woodroffe the other day I had no idea that he was to be your husband."

She glanced at me quickly, and I saw in her dark eyes a look of suspicion. Then she flushed slightly, and laughing uneasily said, in a blank, hard voice:

"It's very good of you, Mr. Gregg, to wish me all sorts of such pleasant things."

"And when is the happy event to take place?"

"The date is not exactly fixed—early next year, I believe," and I thought she sighed.

"And you will probably spend a good deal of time yachting?" I suggested, my eyes fixed upon her in order to watch the result of my pointed remark. But she controlled herself perfectly.

"Mr. Woodroffe has gone up to town, your mother says."

"Yes. He received a wire, and had to leave immediately. It was an awful bore, for we had arranged to go for a picnic to Dundrennan abbey yesterday."

"But he'll be back here again, won't he?"

"I really don't know. It seems quite uncertain. I had a letter this morning which said he might have to go over to Hamburg on business, instead of coming up to us again."

There was disappointment in her voice, and yet at the same time I could not fail to recognize how the man to whom she was engaged had fled from Scotland because of my presence.

As we passed along those graveled walks it somehow became vividly impressed upon me that her marriage was being forced upon her by her parents. Her manner was that of one who was concealing some strange and terrible secret which she feared might be revealed. There was a distant look of unutterable terror in those dark eyes as though she existed in some constant and ever-present dread. Of course she told me nothing of her own feelings or affections, yet I recognized in both her words and her bearing a curious apathy—a want of the real enthusiasm of affection. Woodroffe, much her senior, was her father's friend, and it therefore seemed to me more than likely that Leithcourt was pressing a matrimonial alliance upon his daughter for some ulterior motive. She was perplexed; she longed to confide, and seek advice of someone, yet by reason of some hidden and untoward circumstance her lips were sealed.

I tried to question her further regarding Woodroffe, of what profession he followed and of his past, but she evidently suspected me, for I had unfortunately mentioned the Lola.

Martin Woodroffe did not rejoin the house party at Rannoch. Although I remained the guest of my uncle much longer than I intended, indeed right through the shooting season, in order to watch the Leithcourts, yet as far as we could judge they were extremely well-bred people and very hospitable. We exchanged a good many visits and dinners, and while my uncle several times invited Leithcourt and his friends to his shoot with al fresco luncheon, which the ladies joined, the tenant of Rannoch always invited us back in return.

Thus I gained many opportunities of talking with Muriel, and of watching her closely. I had the reputation of being a confirmed bachelor, and on account of that it seemed that she was in no way averse to my companionship. She could handle a rook rifle as well as any woman, and was really a very fair shot. We often found ourselves alone tramping across the wide open moorland, or along those delightful glens of the Nithsdale, glorious in the autumn tints of their luxurious foliage.

Her father, on the other hand, seemed to view me with considerable suspicion, and I could easily discern that I was only asked to Rannoch because it was impossible to invite my uncle without including myself.

His pronounced antipathy towards me caused me to watch him surreptitiously, and more closely than perhaps I should otherwise have done. He was a man of gloomy mood, and often he would leave his guests and take walks alone, musing and brooding. On several occasions I followed him in secret, and found to my surprise that although he made long detours in various directions, yet he always arrived at the same spot at the same hour—five o'clock.

The place where he halted was on the edge of a dark wood on the brow of a hill about three miles from Rannoch. Leithcourt never went there direct, but always so timed his walks that he arrived just at five, and remained there smoking cigarettes until half-past, as though awaiting the arrival of some person he expected.

In my youth I had sat many a quiet hour there in the darkening gloom and knew the wood well, and was able to watch the tenant of Rannoch from points where he least suspected the presence of another. Once, when I was alone with Muriel, I mentioned her father's capacity for walking alone, whereupon she said:

"Oh, yes, he was always fond of walking. He used to take me with him when we first came here, but he always went so far that I refused to go any more."

She never once mentioned Woodroffe. I allowed her plenty of opportunity for doing so, chaffing her about her forthcoming marriage in order that she might again refer to him. But never did his name pass her lips. I understood that he had gone abroad—that was all.

Often when alone I reflected upon my curious adventure on that night when I met Olinto, and of my narrow escape from the hands of my unknown enemies. I wondered if that ingenious and dastardly attempt upon my life had really any connection with that strange incident at Leghorn. As day succeeded day, my mind became filled by increasing suspicion. Mystery surrounded me on every hand. Indeed, by one curious fact alone it was increased a hundredfold.

Late one afternoon, when I had been out shooting all day with the Rannoch party, I drove back to the castle in the Perth cart with three other men, and found the ladies assembled in the great hall with tea ready. A welcome log fire was blazing in the huge old grate, for in October it is chilly and damp in Scotland and a fire is pleasant at evening.

Muriel was seated upon the high padded fender—like those one has at clubs—which always formed a cozy spot for the ladies, especially after dinner. When I entered, she rose quickly and handed me my cup, exclaiming as she looked at me:

"Oh, Mr. Gregg! What a state you are in!"

"Yes, I was after snipe, and slipped into a bog," I laughed. "But it was early this morning, and the mud has dried."

"Come with me, and I'll get you a brush," she urged. And I followed her through the long corridors and upstairs to a small sitting-room which was her own little sanctum, where she worked and read—a cozy little place with two queer old windows in the colossal wall, and a floor of polished oak, and great black beams above. As my eyes wandered around the room they suddenly fell upon an object which caused me to start with profound wonder—a cabinet photograph in a frame of crimson leather.

The picture was that of a young girl—a duplicate of the portrait I had found torn across and flung aside on board the Lola!

The merry eyes laughed out at me as I stood staring at it in sheer bewilderment.

"What a pretty girl!" I exclaimed quickly, concealing my surprise. "Who is she?"

My companion was silent a moment, her dark eyes meeting mine with a strange look of inquiry.

"Yes," she laughed, "everyone admires her. She was a schoolfellow of mine—Elma Heath."

"Heath!" I echoed. "Where was she at school with you?"

"At Chichester."

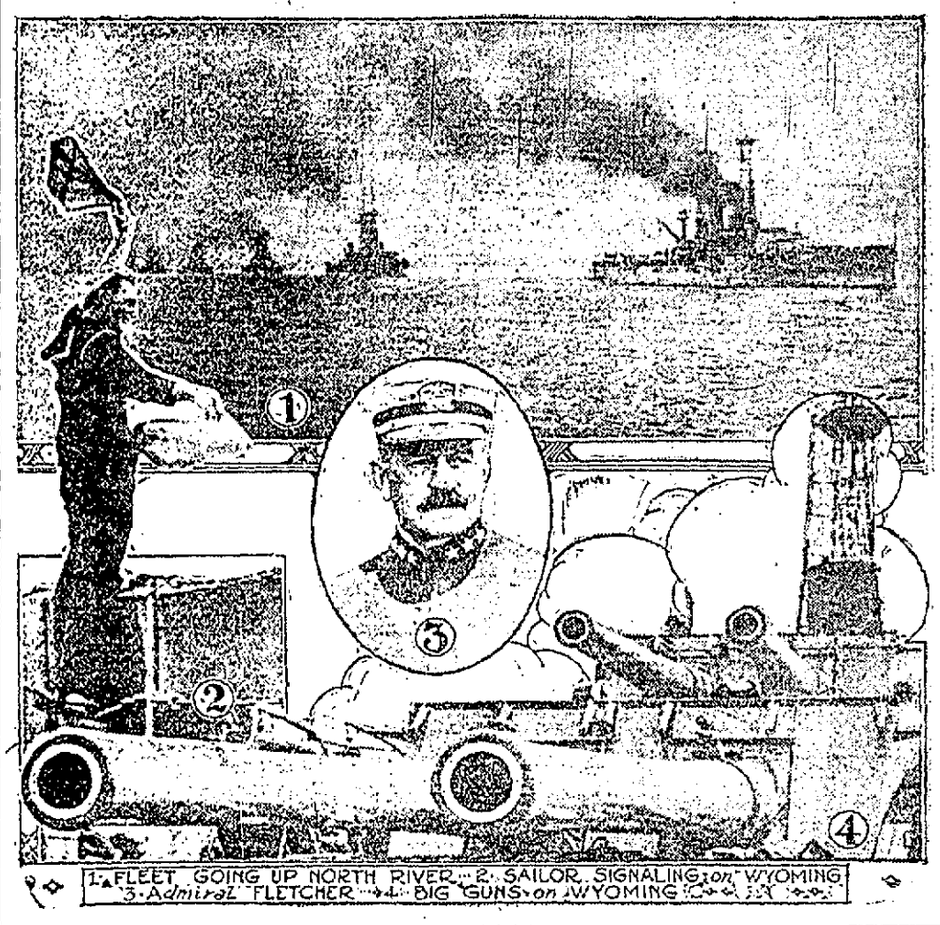

"Long ago?"

"A little over two years ago."

"She's very beautiful!" I declared, taking up the photograph and discovering that it bore the name of the same well-known photographer in New Bond street as that I had found on the corner of the Lola in the Mediterranean.

BRANNIGAN COMING THURSDAY FOR BOUT WITH EDDIE WIMLER

Jimmy Dime Expects Fans Will Turn Out Big for the Next Show.

MAKING SACRIFICE, HE SAYS

Money Here Is Too Small for Patsy to be "Monkeying" With, But to Put the Sport on a Paying Basis in Connellsville He Is Willing to Help Out.

Some of the things the public don't know about the prize fighting game are outlined in a letter from Jimmy Dime, manager of Patsy Brannigan, who meets Eddie Wimler here Thursday night, to Jack Stevens, the local promoter. The fans won't believe for instance, that Brannigan and Wimler could get far more money for a bout in one of the bigger cities and that the friendship between Dime and Stevens is the only things that makes it possible to put on such classy bouts here, in an effort to boost the game and establish Connellsville as a good sporting town.

Dime writes: "Well, it seems like hard work for you to get them coming good over there, as I surely thought Brannigan and McCoy would draw some money, but it seems as though the fans over there are afraid they won't get their money's worth and it will take some time to educate them. Well, as long as you have your show billed everything is all right and I will have Patsy Brannigan over there in the 13th, but will be in New York myself with Chip as he fights Cribby there on Wednesday night. The money over there is awful small for Patsy to be monkeying with, but as I think the town could be made a good one for the game, and willing to sacrifice something to help things along. So I hope this show will at least make some kind of a showing in an interest of the receipts, and if it don't I will begin to think we had the wrong dope on the town.

"I would like to have either Joe or George work over there as there was a chance of getting a decent house, but while I am getting guarantees of $1,000 with privilege, it would not be good policy to go over there and fight for the 6-8 dollars we would get."

Dime says he has an offer to box Chip with Dillon at Indianapolis the day before he is into races at the end of the month and also to have him meet Al McCoy at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Decoration Day for a $1,000 guarantee.

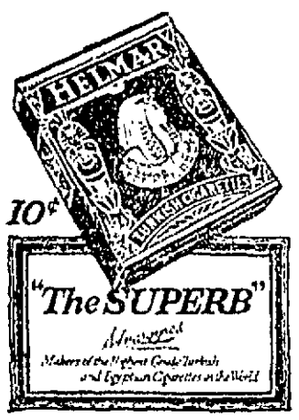

The Brannigan-Wimler bout will be one of the best ever pulled off in Western Pennsylvania and if it is not well patronized, it may mean that there will be no future shows.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A Physician's Advice.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right." —Adv.

HISTORIC FLAG INCIDENTS

The Spirit of '76

THIS picture is more than an incident, it is an Inspiration. It depicts the spirit which, in the trying days of our young Republic, moved men, for sheer love of Liberty and love of Country, to march unflinchingly and carry the Flag of Freedom in the face of almost certain death. Liberty was the slogan of these men—Liberty, with Death as the only alternative.

THIS is Patriotism, and Patriotism of this sort isn't dead. It but requires an OCCASION when it will be found that the American spirit—the Spirit of '76—will blossom forth as strong and virile as ever it did in the darkest days of the Revolution.

There are many occasions upon which you can show YOUR Patriotism. Not, perhaps, by deeds of blood and glory, but you can, by a simpler and yet effective way, show that the spirit of '76 is alive in YOU.

On every National, State or Civic Holiday you can

SHOW THE FLAG

And Thereby Show Your Patriotism

WISHES OTHERS WHO ARE AILING TO HAVE RELIEF

Another Marylander Tells What Inter-State Doctors Have Done for Him.

TREATED BUT ONE MONTH

Suffered from Indigestion and Pain in Limbs for Over a Year; Statement to Sick People.

"I have suffered with indigestion, pains in my limbs and have felt bad for the past 12 months," says Mr. James M. Payne of Cavetown, Md., in a statement made October 11, telling of his rapid return to health since treating with the Inter-State Doctors. "It is now one month since I commenced the Inter-State Doctors' treatment," continues Mr. Payne, "and I have gained in weight, have good appetite and feel so much better that I wish to let others know of my relief so they also may obtain health."

The above statement again cites the quick, certain relief given to sufferers who are accepted for treatment by the Inter-State Doctors who have their famous Cumberland medical institute at 21 North Liberty street, opposite the Liberty Theatre.

Many hundreds of ailing people in Connellsville and vicinity are being treated for their ills by the Inter-State Doctors, who have their medical institute over the Citizens National Bank, corner Pittsburg and Apple streets.
